

Australia's Renewable Energy Transition 2005–2035: share grew sixfold, wind leads, 52 points behind Denmark.

Renewable generation grew eightfold over 20 years to 95,000 GWh at a CAGR of 10.8%, with share rising from 7% to 43%, driven first by wind then solar. Australia ranks last among 4 comparable economies on renewable share, sitting 52 percentage points behind Denmark, and at current trajectory reaches approximately 169,000 GWh by 2035.

18.72%
Average Renewable Share 2005-2025

10.8%
CAGR 2005 to 2025

52.6
Gap to Denmark 2025 (pp)

169K
Forecast 2035 GWh

Wind
Top Renewable Source

Select Year to Filter
All

